FRANKS BOY SLAIN TO SILENCE MOUTH DECLARES LAWYER

Leopold and Loeb Killed To Stop Testimony of Their Perversities and To Get Money.

DEATH ADVENTURE BRANDED AS MYTH

State's Attorney Asserts Murder Was Only First One of Long Series Planned by Youths.

Insanity Escape Closed to Slayings

Chicago, July 21.—According to Chief Justice John R. Caverly, Leopold and Loeb, by pleading guilty to murder, automatically, under the Illinois laws, closed the doors on any move toward an insanity defense, as such, a defense calling for an insanity hearing or the introduction of an insanity plea at a jury trial.

But their pleas carried with them the right for their counsel to present facts to show they were not responsible for their crimes, and this Darrow already has announced he would do. Should the court indicate, at the conclusion of the hearing, that a death sentence would be imposed, Darrow has plenty of precedent, under the Illinois law, for asking that the defendants be permitted to withdraw their pleas. Darrow then could demand an ordinary jury trial through presentation of a plea of not guilty.

Unless Darrow springs some unexpected move, all that Justice Caverly can do is sentence the boys to prison or the gallows. And all that Darrow ever has expected to do, he admitted Monday, was to save his clients from hanging through establishing that they were not responsible for their crimes.

BY H. H. ROBERTSON.

Chicago, July 21.—Brazen as ever, apparently serene in the belief that they never would feel the clutch of the hangman's noose, Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., pleaded guilty Monday to the abduction and murder of 14-year-old Robert Franks.

In one bold stroke, engineered and supervised by Clarence S. Darrow, chief defense counsel, the two 19-year-old intellectual slayers, sons of multi-millionaires, simultaneously threw themselves on the mercy of Chief Justice John R. Caverly of the criminal court, and opened the way for their long-heralded insanity defense in a manner that even the prosecution had failed to anticipate.

Legend Is Exploded.

And closely following this astonishing denouement in the most remarkable murder case of American criminal jurisprudence, there came an almost equally startling disclosure from the state, with the declaration that the slayers' stories of planning the killing of the Franks boy "as an experiment in human emotions" were part of a myth, a legend born in the fertile minds of Loeb and Leopold for the purpose of deceiving the authorities and, perhaps, even their own relatives and the alienists and attorneys these relatives had retained to save their lives.

DE KALB SOLONS WILL AID IN TAX FIGHT SAYS WOOD

Fulton Representative Tells Council Delegation Will Support Effort To Authorize Election.

TAX REFERENDUM FAIR ASSERTS CARL GUESS

Woodruff and Steele Silent on Plans—Delegation Has Not Conferred on Amendments.

The Atlanta school department's fight for a referendum on a one mill emergency tax levy for this year is to be carried into the municipal affairs committee of the Georgia general assembly, with the support of all three DeKalb representatives and of one of Fulton's three representatives, it was announced to city council Monday afternoon by J. O. Wood, the Fulton representative who is supporting the measure.

While Representative Carl N. Guess, of the DeKalb delegation, confirmed Representative Wood's announcement to council in a statement to The Constitution Monday night, Representatives L. J. Steele and Albert Woodruff both stated that they would withhold announcement of their decisions until the measure in issue goes before the lower house of the general assembly for final action. None of the three had conferred with Wood before he made his announcement to council, it is said.

Mr. Wood was granted unanimous consent of council to speak on the list of charter amendments requested by council for this year. He urged all interested citizens to attend the hearing of the assembly's municipal affairs committee when it comes up next Tuesday afternoon.

He said that he was the only one of Fulton's three representatives who would support the emergency tax section but that the support of the DeKalb delegation had been assured. Parts of two Atlanta wards and all of a third lie in DeKalb county.

Has Six Members.

"People overlook the fact that Atlanta has six members to represent her in the assembly," he said, "so when this bill comes up for action a majority of 4 to 2 will favor it instead of a majority of 2 to 1 against it."

The emergency tax levy would be subject to approval by a vote of the people before it would become effective.

Mr. Wood also questioned the usefulness of a permanent registration list, as provided in another amendment, but said he would support it. The general assembly is inclined to refuse to make a change in a local law when the county delegation is divided. Mr. Wood told council and the citizens gathered as spectators, "but it is always willing to do what the people of the community want done and probably will listen with attention to what the people themselves may say."

Mr. Wood invited the Atlanta public to appear before the committee, of which he is a member.

BANKERS DEMAND RUHR EVACUATION AS PRICE OF LOAN

Reparations Conference Receives Unexpected Setback Over Guarantees to Investors.

AMERICANS, ENGLISH STAND SIDE BY SIDE

Keen Disappointment and Some Feeling Manifested By Herriot and French Delegation.

BY CHARLES M. McCANN.

London, July 22.—The allied reparations conference has been held up because of the insistence of British and American bankers on adequate guarantees for the proposed German loan.

The demands of the bankers seem directly opposed to the stand of France, principally on the matter of the evacuation of the Ruhr, a step which the bankers declare must precede any loan. The financiers also will require that other safeguards for the loan be included in the protocol to be drawn up by the conference.

Premier Herriot, of France, was closeted throughout Monday evening with Thomas W. Lamont, member of J. P. Morgan & Co., pleading that the conference demanding better guarantees, according to The Daily Telegraph. It is declared that Herriot pointed out to Lamont the violent feeling in France against further concessions to Germany, but that Lamont answered that any reconsideration was impossible.

Demand Better Guarantees.

Lamont's ultimatum, according to The Telegraph, apprised the premier that the bankers would not touch the loan until better guarantees were effected, including evacuation of the Ruhr.

"The ministers received this ultimatum with keen disappointment and some feeling," the newspaper says. Apparently, however, the most strenuous efforts are being made by all participants in the conference to keep the meeting off the rocks of failure. In this attempt at a compromise agreeable to all, it is believed that unofficial American representatives at the conference, including Ambassador Kellogg, Col. Logan and Owen D. Young, are playing a leading part.

It appears that the decision of the bankers presented to the conference was reached at a conference late Monday in a private room in the parliament building. This conference, according to The Telegraph, was attended by Lamont, Herriot, and the American representatives.

Biennial Session Measure Is Set For Next Monday

Action of Rules Committee Assures Early Action on Bill.

Early decision on biennial sessions for the legislature was assured Monday afternoon when that bill was set by the rules committee of the house for a special order for next Monday.

In addition, bills providing for distillation test on gasoline in the state, and for primary contests are set on the same calendar for Monday. Action of the rules committee sets the three bills as a special and continuing order of business. It will, of course, have to receive the approval of the house today.

The rules committee, in placing the biennial sessions bill for early action, did so, it was stated by members after the meeting of the committee on Monday, in order that the bill will be assured of a final vote with the largest possible attendance of the house present. It is probable, under the plan outlined above, that the bill will come to a vote either Tuesday or Wednesday, days on which there is always a heavy attendance of the house.

Supporters of the measure, which is a constitutional amendment, later that it has the support of a large majority, at the same time admit that, unless there is a full attendance when the vote is cast, it will be hard to secure the necessary vote. Action of the rules committee on Monday, therefore, is taken to mean that body will give it every possible chance before the house.

Atlanta Will Celebrate "Memory Day" At Noon

Special Exercises to Be Held at Five Points On Anniversary of "Battle of Atlanta."

In remembrance of the Battle of Atlanta and in tribute to the development and progress of the city during the last sixty years a "Memory day" celebration will be held in Atlanta today. All Atlantans are urged to unite with the U. S. C. in observance of the occasion.

The principal event of the day will be exercises at noon at Five Points, where patriotic music will be rendered and short addresses made by Governor Clifford Walker, Mayor Walter Sizer, General David Shanks and others. A flag will be raised on the city's flagpole and presented to Atlanta by General Shanks.

Mrs. B. M. Boykin, chairman of the celebration, urges all Atlantans to join with the United Daughters of the Confederacy in paying tribute to heroes of the gray who participated in the battle and to those pioneer citizens, both dead and living who

LIST OF ENTRIES IN LOCAL BEAUTY CONTEST SWELLS

"Miss Pensacola" of 1923 Seeking Title of "Miss Atlanta" of 1924—New Gifts Announced.

PRETTY GIRLS ARE INVITED TO HAVE PICTURES TAKEN.

Staff photographers of The Constitution will be assigned to Mosley and Oakland City parks this afternoon from 5 to 6 o'clock for the purpose of photographing and entering all pretty girls who swim there in The Constitution's "Miss Atlanta" tournament.

At the end of this article is published an entry blank. Clip it out, fill it in properly and present it to the photographers.

Don't be bashful. The Constitution wants every pretty girl in Atlanta to enter. You'll be welcomed.

With additional entries coming in at a rate hitherto unrivaled, The Constitution's tournament to select "Miss Atlanta" for the national beauty pageant, at Atlantic City, Monday swung into its second week and developed several interesting features.

Foremost among these was entry of Miss Katherine Floyd, who in previous years carried the title of "Miss Pensacola" to the Atlantic City event and who now is a resident of Atlanta.

"Nothing could be quite so wonderful," Miss Floyd said, "as for me to be so lucky as to win the Atlanta title this year after having been to Atlantic City last year representing my old home, Pensacola."

"The trip is the most thrilling and wonderful any girl could win. In Atlanta."

Heroes in Fight To Save Atlanta Recalled Today

Major Hubner and Colonel Howell Took Prominent Part in Battle.

BY LOY WARWICK.

"Follow me, boys—let's take the works," and young Captain Albert Howell, company A, of the first Georgia regiment of the Confederate army, leading a few less than 600 yelling, fighting, glorified "rebels," took the "works."

That was 60 years ago today. It was a part of the battle of Atlanta. The "works" was a particular point of vantage, which up until that time had been snugly and destructively occupied by a detachment of Sherman's forces. For this act of bravery, the young captain was commissioned a colonel, and he lives yet a hero in the eyes of his comrades and the people of Atlanta and the south.

And today, when Atlanta commemorates

LA FOLLETTE BOOM NOT PORTENTOUS DECLARES CRITIC

History of Third Party and 'Independent' Movements Does Not Bear Out Senator's Claims.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, July 21.—In this correspondence a week ago it was stated that a reasonable present expectation of La Follette's strength in the election next November would be less than 9 per cent of the whole popular vote throughout the country. To this, energetic exception has been taken by some of La Follette's supporters, and also exception, less heated, by some disinterested observers.

It may be that later on this estimate of La Follette's probable share of the whole popular vote may need to be elevated. Practically everything is yet in the making. But as to La Follette's strength for the moment, the following facts and figures have some bearing:

In every presidential election since and including 1880, there has been always one third party movement, and some times two or more tickets in addition to the regular republican and democratic ones. Many of these extra party movements were fully as serious as La Follette's now promises to be. But in none of these eleven elections except two did the total vote of all the extra tickets aggregate as much as nine per cent of the whole.

In 1880 the grack party, with Weaver as its candidate, got three per cent of the whole vote.

In 1884, two extra parties, prohibitionist, with St. John, and greenback, with Butler, got, combined, three per cent.

In 1888, two extra parties, prohibitionist, with Fisk, and union labor, got, combined, three per cent.

Woman Quits Former Atlantan Mate She Wed Picked for Play As Hero Returns By John Golden

Second Marriage Annulled When First Love Comes From War.

Macon, Ga., July 21.—(Special.) Because she discovered after she had married the second time that her first husband, who had been missing for several years, was still alive, Mrs. Mary Ellis Blair was today granted an annulment of her marriage to C. R. Blair. The order was signed in Bibb superior court.

The couple were married in 1920 at Butler, Ga. Mrs. Blair had previously married Tom Bull, at Columbus, S. C. He went to the world war, and when he did not return, Mrs. Bull took it for granted he had been killed and married Blair. Sometime later word came to her that Bull was still living. She immediately separated herself from Blair and brought the annulment proceeding. Blair later disappeared and annulment proceedings lagged for lack of prosecution until Mrs. Blair herself urged that the matter be brought into court and the annulment effected.

FOUR PASSENGERS KILLED AS BOATS COLLIDE IN FOG

Steamer Boston From Newport to New York Rammed By Oil Tanker Off Point Judith.

PASSENGERS AND CREW REMOVED FROM BOSTON

Three Ships Standing By to Give Assistance to Steamer, Reported in Danger of Sinking.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

New York, July 22.—Four passengers are known to be dead as a result of a collision between the steamship Boston, a passenger steamer out of Newport, R. I., for New York, and the oil tanker Swift Arrow, in a dense fog off Point Judith late last night.

Early today all the passengers and crew had been removed from the Boston, which was reported to be in danger of sinking, except the captain and the wireless operator. Three ships were standing by in a heavy fog to render assistance.

The fog was so heavy that the rescuing ships dared not approach the Boston too closely, and drifted about, playing their searchlights over the water. The radius of visibility was reported as extremely short and the steamers would only pick up those passengers whose boats happened to come within the circle of light.

Although the first passengers said that the Priscilla, a Fall River liner, was involved, later messages established the identity of the vessel that rammed the Boston as the Swift Arrow, a tanker bound for San Francisco from Fall River, Mass.

It was stated that the Boston was leaking badly and that the Swift Arrow was standing by whistling for help.

The messages containing word of the loss of four lives indicated that they were passengers on the Boston.

The naval tugs Teal, Rail and Hoboken were sent out from here, and the coast guard cutter Acushnet was sent from a station in waters nearby.

The Boston, a combined freighter and passenger ship, has accommodation for 1,068 passengers.

The steamship, New York, a sister ship of the Boston, was launched last January, and a week ago rammed a ferryboat in the Hudson river off Warren street, New York city. No one was injured, but a large hole was torn in the side of the ferry boat.

ACTIVE COOLIDGE FIGHT IS PLANNED

Headquarters for Georgia Opened Today in Healey Building With Tucker in Charge.

Plans for an active Coolidge campaign to be carried into every county in Georgia was formulated Monday at a conference of Dr. W. Y. Gilliam, new state chairman, with other republican leaders. W. R. Tucker, chief deputy United States marshal, was appointed campaign director and placed in charge of state republican headquarters, which open this morning at 729-30 Healey building.

In order to devote his entire attention to the campaign, Mr. Tucker has resigned his position as chief deputy marshal. His place will be taken, it was announced, by D. C. Cole, prominent republican of Marietta, former assistant postmaster of Atlanta, and one time postmaster of Marietta.

COUNCIL REFUSES TO MAKE CHANGES ON TWO APPEALS

Action Is Taken Despite Fact That Majority of Tax Committee Had Recommended Reduction.

WHITE AND SAUNDERS URGED CUT REQUESTED

Alderman Carpenter Asserts Granting Appeal Would Upset Prnt Basis of Taxation.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Atlanta city council stood pat Monday on the $40,000,000 increase in tax assessments made by the tax assessors at the beginning of the year.

Two appeals from assessments, the first ones ever to be filed in legal form and take the course prescribed by law for appeals of this kind, were turned down by council although a majority of the tax committee had recommended that they be granted.

An appeal filed by the Silver Five and Ten-Cent store lease-holders was voted adversely 21 to 11 and one by the Wilensky interests was adversely by acclamation without a roll call vote.

Object to Assessments.

The Silver interests had informed the tax committee that the land and building on Whitehall street, leased by them had been offered for sale at $250,000 with no buyers and that it should be assessed at $250,000, or 70 per cent of that sum, instead of the $290,000 fixed by the assessors.

Alderman W. B. Hartsfield, chairman, and J. Allen Couch, the minority members of the tax committee who had voted against granting the assessment reduction, told council that the Silver store was assessed on the identical basis as the property adjacent to it and that the reason the land and building could not be sold was because the Silver interests have a long-term lease at a figure that does not make the property profitable during the term of the lease.

Councilmen J. A. White and W. E. Saunders, who with Councilman Edward H. Inman had voted the committee's majority report in favor of reduction, both spoke in favor of granting the appeal, declaring that business property now is assessed in nearly every instance above its ability to pay.

The Wilensky appeal was for a reduction from $89,955 to $75,500, the last named figure being 70 per cent of the price paid for the South Forsyth street property.

Atlanta Roasts As Mercury Tops 96 Degree Mark

Relief Seen for Today in Form of Thunder Showers.

Atlanta sweltered Monday under the withering blast of the hottest wave that has hit this section of country in three years, when the mercury up to 96 degrees at its highest point at 4 o'clock and registered an average for the day of 86 degrees, eight degrees higher than the average for the time of year, according to C. F. von Hermann, meteorologist of the weather bureau.

Some relief today was promised in the form of thunder showers which were expected Monday, but, figuratively, were evaporated by the heat before they could fall to earth.

The hot wave, it was stated, originated two days ago in the Great Plains of the west, sizzling over Kansas at a temperature several degrees higher than that experienced here.

The lowest temperature of the day was 75 degrees at 5:30 o'clock in the morning, and beginning at sunrise the mercury climbed higher and higher until 4 o'clock, then declining slightly during the rest of the afternoon and night.

The hot wave is to be dissipated as the week grows older by occasional thunder showers, which will probably fall every day, beginning today. It is moving on eastward and northward up the coast.

STATE TO DEMAND DEATH BY NOOSE FOR SLAYER PAIR

Defense Springs Surprise When It Offers Plea of Guilty Asking Insanity Hearing.

STATE BLOCKS MOVE TO GET JAIL TERM

Father of Franks Brands Insanity Talk "Nonsense"—Says Gallows Should Not Be Cheated.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, July 21.—The fate of Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., kidnapers and slayers of 14-year-old Robert Franks, was today placed in the hands of one man—John R. Caverly, chief justice of the criminal court of Cook county—when they pleaded guilty.

Apparently the only question remaining to be decided is whether they shall hang or be imprisoned for a double crime without parallel in this jurisdiction.

Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, reiterated his intention of asking the death penalty for the two college students.

Clarence S. Darrow and Benjamin Bachrach, attorneys for the defense, announced in court their purpose to see their clients "safely incarcerated for life."

"We have had no intention of trying to restore them to society," explained Mr. Darrow.

Court Crowd Stunned.

Thus he answered a question which had been widely discussed since the killing, whether the combined wealth of two of the oldest and richest families of Chicago, estimated to have resources of more than $10,000,000, would be used to set free their two minor sons.

The unexpected denouement stunned a court room crowd of attorneys, newspaper men, court attaches and a few privileged spectators, and upset all plans for the trial, which had been scheduled to begin August 4.

Instead, starting Wednesday, there will be a judicial hearing before an empty jury box.

Sanity Admitted, Says Crowe.

That the defense was content to await the developments from this hearing was emphasized by the sphinx-like silence that was maintained by all concerned with the defendants. The boys themselves, their parents, special counsel of the families and the active defense attorneys all decided to discuss the proceedings. The prosecution was a bit more communicative.

"The plea of guilty admits the sanity of the defendants," said Mr. Crowe tonight.

"The question of insanity is entirely out of the case now. All the defense can offer at the hearing is evidence tending to mitigate the punishment. Whether they can establish that remains to be seen."

"I am going to ask the death penalty in the interest of society. I have about 75 witnesses and they will pre-

The Merchant Who Looked For Atlanta in Vain---

Of the climate and other conditions of the settlement now grown into Atlanta, Mr. David Mayer had heard much in 1847.

But Mr. Mayer didn't locate in Atlanta then, and for a reason sound enough: he couldn't find the town.

The town must have been here, though, for Mr. Mayer continued to hear about it until a year later when he came back. This time he succeeded in finding Atlanta. He stayed to live happily and prosper.

Men of Mr. Mayer's grit made up Atlanta of old. If they couldn't find the town at first they searched till they did find it and then went to work.

Business may be hard to find for every merchant now and then, but the business is right here and the merchant who keeps going after it gets it.

You'll find that one of the most profitable ways to connect with this business is through the advertising columns of The Atlanta Constitution.

Business Session To Be Held Today By Stereotypers

With the first business session of the meeting scheduled for this morning, and a barbecue at Grant park at 1 o'clock this afternoon, the International Stereotypers' and Electrotypers' Union of North America enters on the second day of its annual six-day convention.

The meeting was officially opened at 10 o'clock Monday morning with registration at the Hotel Ansley of the 350 delegates from all parts of the United States and Canada who are in attendance. Addresses of welcome were delivered by Mayor Sims for the city of Atlanta, and by William Van Houten for the local federation of labor. James J. Freil, president of the international union, made a short reply.

An automobile trip to Stone Mountain and a reception at the Biltmore hotel to wives of delegates featured the entertainment program Monday. The remainder of the week is crowded with social functions of all sorts, culminating in a grand dinner-dance Thursday night at the Ansley roof garden.

Since this is the first time the convention has come south, members of local union No. 42 and ladies of the local women's auxiliary, who are acting as hosts, are especially anxious to demonstrate the true warmth of southern hospitality. M. R. Duncan is chairman of the convention committee and Mrs. W. I. Calloway is president of the women's auxiliary.

HEROES OF ATLANTA REMEMBERED TODAY

ates the memory of the heroes of the battle of Atlanta, it is well to remember another who lives in Atlanta, at 185 Gordon street, and another who might justly be termed a hero, for the times were frequent when he rode bravely into the face of death, bearing some message vital to the safety of thousands of his comrades. The latter is Major Charles W. Hunter, of 80 Catherine street.

In the hurry of this busy city, one is wont to forget. But on a day like today, people get together, remember things, and thank God for those soldiers of the south. Because they can never forget entirely, and because they want the world to know just how proud they are of those "rebels," they pay tribute.

Today, just as it was on this same day sixty years ago, the thunder of cannon will wake the city. The cannon will signify the beginning of a day of tribute and prayer, and will call to mind the heroism and sacrifice of the battle of Atlanta.

Colonel Howell, then holding the rank of captain, who yet, with surprising skill and startling realism, can give voice to a genuine "rebel yell," was the idol of his men. He still is. The story of his bravery on that particular occasion has been told and retold. It's hard to forget how, when his commanding officer was shot down in battle, a courier came to him as he lay stretched prone upon the ground. Reaching over the dead bodies of comrades who had fallen beside him, he took the scribbled note from the courier's hands. He was to take charge of the regiment.

He didn't know why, but he did know that he had fired his last charge of powder, and he knew that many of those around him had done the same. He knew that almost a thousand of Sherman's soldiers were firing with deadly aim into the ranks over which he had just come into command. He knew behind that formidable breast-works they hid snugly, and he also knew that those 500 members of his regiment were brave to a man.

Captain Howell leaped to his feet. With a yell, he ran down a gauntlet of fire to where the Confederate colors waved defiance in the face of the enemy. He reached the colors, ceased his yelling long enough to shout to the "boys" to follow him and "take the works," and then he dashed headlong in the direction of those embattlements.

It was unanimous. The "boys" followed, and inside a very few minutes Captain Howell and his men were in the "works." After getting a little breath, they rounded up 37 prisoners. A few days later he was commissioned a colonel in recognition of this service.

Colonel Howell took a prominent part in the defense of Atlanta, and due to his leadership and bravery rendered great and invaluable service. Atlanta will not forget him when it pays tribute today to the defenders of the city 60 years ago.

Superintendent All Messages. Major Hubner is another veteran to be remembered. His job was a dangerous one, and one upon which the responsibility of the lives and safety of thousands of men rested. During the Battle of Atlanta he superintended the sending and receiving of all messages, and he was frequently called to ride into the hottest of fire as a courier.

It was Major Hubner who received the dispatch from Jefferson Davis to General Joe Johnston which directed that then head of the Confederate forces to "hold Atlanta at every sacrifice." It was Major Hubner who, in his little office, which was continually under fire, sent Johnston's reply to Davis: "I will not sacrifice one man under any circumstances and I will not be led into a pitched battle with Sherman." It was Major Hubner who carried the order to Johnston to "turn command over to General John Hood."

At the corner now known as Pryor and Alabama street, the Confederate forces, during the first stand in Atlanta, made their headquarters. It was an old hotel—the "America"—and made an easy and favored target for Sherman's artillery. At one time 30 guns played a steady stream of lead in the general direction of "headquarters," and finally it was necessary to vacate in order that a roof might be had overhead.

The first shell fired by Sherman's forces in the Battle of Atlanta, according to Major Hubner, took the life of a man and his daughter as they lay sleeping.

Hubner Taken Prisoner. Major Hubner was taken a prisoner in the final stages of the battle, but was later released on parole. His brave service during the war is remembered.

Major Hubner's father, who was in the Union army, was mortally wounded in the Battle of Shiloh and died shortly after at a hospital at Memphis.

There were many, many more heroes in the Battle of Atlanta. Most of them have gone to that other land, where there are no battle grounds. And while special tribute is paid to these two living heroes, the rest are not forgotten.

lantic City last year I had the finest time of my life, and any girl who wins the Atlanta tournament may well consider herself one favored of the gods."

Miss Floyd explained that immediately after returning from the Atlantic City pageant last year, she came to Atlanta and is living at 116 Forrest avenue.

Simultaneously with the development that Atlanta beauties must compete with the 1923 "Miss Pensacola," the rich prize to be awarded the first winner was increased by announcement of two more interesting gifts from Atlanta business concerns.

Leo Frankel, Peachtree Arcade wholesale dealer in "As You Like It" hosiery, stated that when "Miss Atlanta" is selected he will ask her to visit his place of business and select half a dozen pairs of stockings in any color she may desire.

"With her fine gowns and toilet," Mr. Frankel stated, "Miss Atlanta should not fail to wear the finest of stockings. That's why I want her to accept my offer."

Mrs. Mamie Lander, of the Flower-in-the-Bottle perfume shop, 205 Conally building, stated that she desired to equip "Miss Atlanta" with the exact shade of powder and rouge suited to her skin.

"I shall be delighted to match 'Miss Atlanta's' toilettries to her personal requirements," Mrs. Lander said. "This will include powder and rouge for every occasion, waterproof rouge and a protecting cream for the beach.

delicately perfumed body powder, perfume, toilet water and sachet."

While these concerns were adding their tribute to the wealth of gifts already promised the lucky winner of The Constitution's 1924 tournament, entries for the enviable title of Atlanta's fairest daughter were coming in at faster pace Monday than at any time previously.

Publication of pictures of beautiful applicants spurred interest keenly, and every effort was being made to bring every beautiful girl in Atlanta into the tourney in order that the final winner may truly be termed the city's most beautiful young lady.

Beauties Seen on Screen.

Big audiences throughout Monday viewed with keen interest the first moving pictures of the tournament made by Tracy Mathewson and shown at the Metropolitan theater.

The film featured about twenty applicants for "Miss Atlanta" title, and showed them parading on the boardwalk of a local pool and diving. The film will be shown at the Metropolitan throughout the week, and is the first of a series of weekly movie features on the tourney to be made by Mr. Mathewson.

Intensity of interest in the tournament was demonstrated by the fact that employees of the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company have met and selected Miss Mamie Merck as their representative entry in the tourney.

The Howard theater has also entered Miss Jenn Reed, and will offer her as Atlanta's prettiest girl for consideration of the judges.

Photographers at Piedmont and

Grant park pools, assigned there Monday afternoon to take photographs of prospective entrants, reported keen interest among bathers there, with the result that numerous entries were made.

In addition, many called at the studio of Wesley Hirschburg and made appointments for photos there. At the same time the studio of Mathewson and Price, staff photographers of The Constitution, was also visited by a number of applicants. All photos are made without cost to girls who enter the tournament.

Regulations of Contest.

ACTION POSTPONED ON CIVIL SERVICE

Meeting Monday afternoon with a bare quorum present, the committee at the state of the republic of the house of representatives deferred action on a bill by Representative Langley, of Floyd county, providing for a state civil service commission, until a sub-committee could redraft the measure. The committee also voted to postpone action on a bill by Representative Guess, of DeKalb county, which would prohibit the use of the flag of the United States for advertising purposes.

Representative Langley, appearing before the committee, explained that his bill was a modified form of the national civil service and several state civil service laws and stated that he thought the people of Georgia were in a receptive mood for such legislation to do away "with the trafficking in minor offices for political reasons."

Amendment Proposed. The Floyd representative pointed out that his bill would place all employees of the several departments and branches of the state government under the civil service commission and would make them responsible to the commission for their conduct. The commission, under the bill as introduced, would be composed of the governor, the attorney general and the secretary of state, acting without extra salary, with a secretary and an examiner in charge of reports and records of the commission.

The committee considered the advisability of an amendment creating a salaried commission and examiner, taking the attitude that the governor, secretary of state and attorney general would not have time to properly care for the civil service end. This was one of the questions to be thrashed out by the sub-committee.

Provisions of Bill. The bill provided that all applicants stand a competitive examination, and that upon completion of the examination the commission should recommend to the head of the department, three persons in the order of their grading, for selection for the position. The bill did not specify any term for employees under the civil service commission and the committee felt that it was not wise to perpetuate any office, and discussed a recommendation for an amendment which would require that all holders of positions under the public service commission jurisdiction should be required to stand a competitive examination every year for the position, the examination to determine whether or not the incumbent would be returned. This also, the sub-committee will decide.

The bill made provisions for discharge by the commission of any civil service employee upon conviction of charges brought before the commission after a trial. The bill also specified that the commission should meet at least four times yearly to hear charges against any department or employee under its control. The examiner would be required under the bill to submit to the legislature each year a written report of the year's work and containing recommendations.

Rhodes Furniture Store Managers in Session Here

The managerial personnel of A. G. Rhodes & Son, owners of a chain of retail furniture stores, met here last Friday morning in the Rhodes building in the eleventh annual convention, J. D. Rhodes presiding.

Friday and Saturday were devoted exclusively to the discussion of business matters pertaining to the chain of stores. Sunday was devoted to the visiting of places of interest in Atlanta.

Sunday night this body of Rhodes men entertained on a special car on a buying trip to southern furniture markets.

The Rhodes chain of furniture stores is well known throughout the south.

Funeral services for Captain Cecil Barron Strobhar, of Atlanta and Savannah, who died Monday at the Walter Reed hospital, Washington, will be held in Savannah Wednesday.

Other arrangements to be announced later. Captain Strobhar's death followed two operations for an abscess on his lung, which resulted from a severe gassing received in the Argentine during the world war.

He had been a patient at the Washington hospital for some time, having been transferred there from the marine hospital at Savannah. In addition to pulmonary disorders, he contracted pneumonia this spring, which developed into emphysema as a result of the gas poisoning.

Captain Strobhar, who was 31 years old, was born in Savannah, and attended public schools of that city. After graduation from Alabama Polytechnic institute, he entered the cotton business as a buyer for one of the largest firms in Savannah, making headquarters in Atlanta, and later at Pine Bluff, Ark. He then became affiliated with the Aetna Life Insurance company, and was associated with the late W. E. Hawkins, general agent for the company, in Atlanta.

He entered the first officers' training camp at Fort McPherson at the beginning of the war, and was commissioned as first lieutenant. He went overseas as a member of the Eighty-second division, but was transferred to the 326th infantry, with the rank as captain. He saw service in the Toul sector and at St. Mihiel and in the Argonne.

Shortly before leaving for France he was married to Miss Mary Hawkins of Atlanta, who survives him. He also leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Garnett Strobhar, of Savannah, and a sister, Mrs. R. P. Williams, wife of Colonel Richard P. Williams, of the marine corps.

Thirty for one!
Beats the Arabian Nights cry of "new lamps for old"—and is sounded with the aid of Constitution insurance.
As witness:
L. J. Kidd, of 24 Ransom street, was injured in an automobile accident on June 5, 1924, at Rome. His car ran off the road and turned over, from which accident he was totally disabled for three weeks.

Mr. Kidd was the holder of a $1,000 Constitution Travel and Pedestrian Accident Insurance policy, for which he paid only $1 per year—and under its terms he was paid the sum of $30 on July 3.

This accident policy provided payment of $1,000 in case of death in certain specified accidents, varying sums for accidents and $10 weekly indemnity for disability resulting from the accidents specified. As stated above, the policy cost only $1 in addition to the regular subscription cost of The Daily and Sunday Constitution.

If you're a wise one, you'll also be interested in The Constitution $500 Group Reader Life Insurance offer, which provides payment of $500 in case of death in any form and is the only straight life insurance offer made by an Atlanta newspaper. The policy costs only 15 or 20 cents per week—depending on the risk—in addition to the regular Daily and Sunday Constitution subscription rates. As long as payments on both the policy and The Constitution subscription continue, the policy is in force.

Both these unparalleled opportunities to secure economical and efficient insurance should appeal strongly to all persons who have loved ones dependent upon them.

Call, write or phone The Constitution insurance department and full particulars will be furnished you.

Managers in Session Here

having stores in Jacksonville, Fla., Pensacola, Fla., Miami, Fla., Charleston, S. C., Augusta, Ga., Macon, Ga., and Atlanta. The Atlanta store is known as Rhodes-Wood Furniture company. The organization operates a total of eleven stores.

The convention was a very successful one. It was stated. Various store managers stated that owing to a seemingly general spirit of optimism throughout the south, they believe that business for the retail merchants will be unusually good this fall.

Mr. Rhodes stated that he and his managers were going to put forth their best efforts on this buying trip to obtain for their patrons the high standard of merchandise for which this chain of stores is noted.

In inspecting the work done by the two Carolinas, the solons found, they state, that while South Carolina is committed to a "lay-as-you-go" system, North Carolina has largely created her magnificent system of hard-surfaced highways through a $65,000,000 state bond issue. The result, they say, strongly in favor of the bond issue plan.

However, to the splendid road systems in both states, the Georgia lawmakers gave all praise and added their belief that the rapid industrial strides of both could be largely attributed to the good roads in all sections.

As a result of their inspection, and of a number of public meetings at which they were the guests of honor, the Georgians have concluded that maintenance is at least as important, if not more so, as original construction.

"They also stated that they are positive that hard-surfaced roads would prove the best and most economical in the long run."

Representative B. F. Mann, of Glynn county, acting as spokesman for the party, is of the opinion that a bond issue is the only proper answer for Georgia's road problem. He does not, however, advocate an expensive or extensive plan as that of North Carolina, but he advocates an issue of not over $40,000,000. His plan provides for amortization of these bonds by use of the three-cent gasoline tax already collected, without the necessity of any additional tax burden for the state to carry.

Points visited by the solons on their tour included Anderson, Greenville, Spartanburg, Charlotte, Gastonia, Shelby, Morganton, Asheville and Chimney Rock. They were met at all places by every courtesy of the local people, had the company of the leading engineers of the highway departments of both states, and were much impressed by the spirit of genuine hospitality which met them wherever they went.

MORGAN VACATION TO INFLUENCE STUDY OF GERMAN LOAN

New York, July 21.—J. P. Morgan will sail next Saturday on the Minnawaska for his annual vacation in Europe. His holiday, as usual, will include the autumn hunting season in Scotland.

While the banker denied that his trip had any connection with the forthcoming German loan, the financial district considered that the presence of Mr. Morgan in Europe would lead European experts to seek his advice regarding its flotation, if arrangements are concluded for an offering this year. The American portion of the estimated $200,000,000 loan, probably will be marketed through a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan and company.

Thomas W. Lamont, another member of the Morgan firm, is now in Europe and it is expected that he and Mr. Morgan will confer in London.

SOLONS IMPRESSED BY CAROLINAS TRIP

After four days spent on an automobile tour of North and South Carolina, a group of Georgia legislators returned to the state capital Monday, strongly impressed with the progress the sister states had made in making in the building of roads, and enthusiastically endorsing any feasible plan by which Georgia can forge to the front as a road-building commonwealth.

In inspecting the work done by the two Carolinas, the solons found, they state, that while South Carolina is committed to a "lay-as-you-go" system, North Carolina has largely created her magnificent system of hard-surfaced highways through a $65,000,000 state bond issue. ANTI-FEE MEASURE INTRODUCED IN HOUSE

While a sub-committee has been appointed by the representatives in the legislature of Georgia's eight largest counties to draft a new bill eliminating the fee system of paying county officers in those counties and substituting salaries, the Fulton delegation has already introduced a bill to achieve this end in Fulton county.

The Fulton bill, which limits its provisions to counties of 200,000 or more population, provides that county officers shall receive salaries of $7,500 each, and that the county commissioners shall fix the salaries of employees in the various offices, as well as other expenses, after receiving recommendations from the county department heads.

This bill, prepared by Representative J. O. Wood, differed from one that had been drawn up by Representative Bessie Kempton, in that hers did not fix the amount of the salaries, leaving that to the county commissioners. Under Representative Wood's bill, another act of the legislature would be necessary any time it was desired to increase an official's salary.

While Miss Kempton's name was attached to the bill introduced, she stated Monday that it was done without her knowledge and she did not know whether she would now introduce her bill or not.

GEORGIA ASSOCIATION PLANS BIG MEETING

Large landowners and representatives of real estate concerns and farm loan companies from all sections of Georgia have been invited to attend a meeting in Savannah on Friday, July 25, called by F. M. Oliver, vice-president of the Georgia association, for the purpose of devising plans for developing and advertising farm lands that may be for sale and attracting new farm settlers to the state. At the same time the matter of providing an easier way for tenant farmers to become owners of the soils they are tilling will be taken up.

The success which has followed the application of the Georgia association land settlement plan by one or two large land owners leads to the belief that a large number of Georgians will accept the invitation to the Savannah meeting to hear the Georgia association's plan explained in full and to help plan ways and means for making its benefits state-wide, officials said Monday.

A special entertainment, which is expected to afford an additional attraction to those who attend this meeting, is a water carnival, an elaborate and unique affair which is to be held on the Wilmington river at Thundersbolt, July 24-25, and which is expected to crowd Savannah on those dates. Vice President Oliver is planning his program so that the business of the conference may start promptly at 10 o'clock in the morning and be completed before lunch so that all visitors may have the opportunity of witnessing carnival exercises on Friday afternoon.

A feature of the program will be a replica of a land owner in Georgia who has successfully located over 34 farmers from other sections, following the Georgia association land settlement plan, during the past year.

NAVY WILL AID FLIERS
ON HOMEWARD STRETCH

Newport, R. I., July 21.—The navy today began its task of keeping watch below while the army world fliers soared over the Atlantic on the homeward leg of their journey. The cruiser Richmond, flagship of Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder, commanding the light-cruiser squadron, slipped out of this port today, the advance guard of a dozen naval vessels which will be stationed along the route of the aviators from England to the Orkney Islands, Iceland and Greenland to the North American continent on the west coast of Labrador and onward across New Foundland and Nova Scotia to Boston.

The Richmond will be joined in British waters by the cruiser Raleigh and two destroyers from the European squadron and the four warships will guard the flight from England to the Orkneys and thence to Iceland. The cruiser Milwaukee, now at Halifax, will distribute supplies to the various points where the fliers are scheduled to stop, and the destroyers will be strung out along the leg from Greenland to Labrador.

If the latest schedule drawn up for the homing planes is carried out, they will drop into the more or less sheltered waters of Indian Bay, Labrador, on August 17. Four days later they should reach Pictou, N. S., and after a brief stop proceed to Boston and thence down the coast to Washington and across the continent to complete the flight at its starting point in California.

Boston, July 21.—The return to the United States of the world-circling fliers, who are to complete the crossing of the Atlantic at this port, probably about August 21, will be marked by a "welcome of a welcome home," Captain Louis R. Knight, air service officer for New England, said today.

Besides a military and naval demonstration, he said, "there will be an aerial circus. We will send three squadrons of ten planes each up the coast of Maine, some as far east as Pictou, N. S., to escort Lieutenant Smith and his associates to Boston. The chief of the air service, General Mason M. Patrick, and the assistant chief, General William D. Mitchell, as well as other officials from Washington, will fly here to extend the welcome. We are preparing also to have about 50 visiting planes at the East Boston air port."

William F. Wait
Drops Dead While Working Garden

William Franklin Wait, well-known Atlanta screen contractor, dropped dead late Monday afternoon while at work in the garden behind his home, 60 Beale avenue, the same house in which his mother was burned to death in January of this year. His death, which is attributed to heart trouble, came before medical assistance could be rendered.

Mrs. Allie Ferguson, Mr. Wait's mother, suffered burns which proved fatal when her dress caught fire as she was seated in front of an open fireplace, and she died at Grady hospital on the following day.

Mr. Wait apparently had been in the best of health, as he had worked all day. He was 65 years old, and was prominent in civic affairs of the neighborhood.

He is survived by his widow and a son, Waldo J. Wait.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday, with interment in West View, other arrangements to be announced later by T. C. Bazemore.

BRITAIN PROTESTS
CUBAN TREATMENT OF JAMAICANS

Havana, Cuba, July 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—Strong representations have been made to the Cuban government by Great Britain that Jamaican negroes, who come in thousands each year to Cuba to work on the sugar cane fields, are being discriminated against and ill treated. This fact became known today.

Correspondence has been going on secretly for some months between the two countries and during this time a courtesy visit by a British bishop was called off after the British government had declared itself dissatisfied with Cuba's replies.

PICKED FOR PLAY

up to the big sports and pleasure colony for a little goit.

But Golden can't get away from the theater. He likes a sure thing. He was persuaded to speak at the club—and just naturally formed a little theater group on the spot, and gave the club the right to produce all his plays, borrow his properties and call on him for advice. "The first year" was chosen for production.

Golden looked over his audience. He just naturally had to pick a cast.

The Georgia college professor was right in the foreground. He has a lucid face and good dark eyes. Golden beckoned him right out of the audience. He saw in him the kindly doctor of the play who heals the troubles of the young married couple, Mrs. Matthews, a striking looking young woman (who married the professor when just out of Ohio State university some three or four years ago) was also selected for a part.

Promises Broadway Chance.

Golden could not tear himself away. He trained his new company for five weeks, highly praising the Matthews for their work. The amusing touch was Golden's final promise, his eye on the professor. "I find promising material here in the Adirondacks I promise to give that man or woman, that girl or boy, a chance on Broadway!" And now club members are asking Professor Matthews if he is really going on the stage.

"The First Year" will have its first public appearance in the Adirondacks at the Lake Placid theater, in New York. The whole Adirondacks is coming to the play, some five or six near villages. In fact the play is destined for a "run." Golden has promised the presentation of six plays this summer.

But Professor Matthews is a little nervous. He's afraid his friends in Springfield, Dayton, and Atlanta may hear of his little fling into play-acting and think he has lost his job. Professor Matthews comes of one of Georgia's most prominent families. He is a graduate of Georgia Tech and while in Atlanta was connected with the Southern Bell Telephone company.

PIRATES DELAY RELIEF

OF HOMELESS CHINESE

Canton, July 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—The flood situation here is unchanged today but serious news is arriving from many outlying points regarding the spread of suffering among many ousted from their homes by the waters. Many are destitute. Relief measures are being taken, but the activities of five pirates, who are only too ready to seize supplies intended for the flood victims, and the want of money to finance the relief work are hampering it sadly.

third. This 1912 situation provides no analogy whatever for La Follette's present enterprise.

The analogy most hopeful to La Follette is that of Weaver in 1892. Weaver carried five states: Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Nevada and North Dakota, and ran second in eight others: Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Nebraska, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas and Wyoming. But Weaver accomplished this only by combining, in most cases, with either the republicans or democrats. He combined with the democrats in five states and with the republicans in two. This statement is, alone, enough to suggest the relative weakness of La Follette, for there is not this year any such considerable number of states in which the La Follette party is so strong, or the old parties are so weak, that one or both of them is willing to combine with La Follette. There may be three such states now, and possibly one or two more later in the campaign.

But there are not as many as seven, which was the number in which Weaver was able to bring about combinations.

Consider now another set of figures from our own time, namely, the results of the primaries held in Minnesota, on June 16, 1924. In practically every statement of La Follette's probable strength, his supporters begin with his own state of Wisconsin and then name Minnesota as the second.

And yet, in these Minnesota primaries last month, 238,469 republicans were cast, compared to 204,735 farmer-labor ballots. In both the republican and the farmer-labor parties there were energetic and roughly equal contests for the nomination for governor and other offices. Therefore, the presumption is that as many third party voters went to these June primaries to vote for Magnus Johnson and other farmer-labor candidates as will go to the polls to vote for third party candidates in November. If this is a correct assumption, and there is no reason it should not be, then the plain forecast of these June primaries in Minnesota is that the republicans should carry Minnesota as against La Follette.

This forecast, inherent in the figures of the June primaries, is borne out by the judgment of several authorities in Minnesota of diverse political complexion who agree in saying it is doubtful if La Follette will carry Minnesota in the fall.

In short, any clear-minded person would be obliged to predict today, on the basis of facts and figures revealed as recently as the primaries of June 16, that La Follette will not carry Minnesota this fall. No other deduction is possible from the provisions of the constitution.

And if there is reasonable present doubt of La Follette's carrying Minnesota, there must be rather more reasonable doubt of his carrying all the considerable number of other states commonly attributed to him, excepting always his own state of Wisconsin, which is his surety.

Deduction Seems Sound.

This is a fair statement of the present conditions, based on the only kind of known facts from which sound deductions can be drawn. These conditions may change later on. It is predicted that La Follette will get the "wet" vote because of the German vote everywhere. For this prediction there is some basis.

George Sylvester Viereck's American monthly, which is a kind of German organ in America, has printed a call under the caption, "Up, Up, La Follette," in which he says, among other things: "The German American element will be a solid phalanx behind La Follette."

It is predicted, also, that La Follette will get the "wet" vote because of all three candidates he is most nearly identified with the "wet" position. As against these and similar predictions, it must be recalled that La Follette's strength in the recent session of congress, which strength was the thing that gave him encouragement to run for president, came almost wholly from a definite group of northwestern states, and was based chiefly on distress among farmers, especially those raising wheat. This distress was the primary basis of the La Follette movement.

Economic Condition Changed.

Between that time and the spring when La Follette had his maximum following in congress, and the present day, there has been a rise in the price of wheat and corn equivalent to nearly 40 cents a bushel in the selling price. About three-fourths of the addition has now been achieved. In short, the hoped for effect of the McNary-Haugen bill for government marketing of the wheat crop, that this innovation would add 40 cents a bushel to the selling price, about three-fourths of the bill, but by the operation of the ordinary law of supply and demand. This must have two effects: First, to relieve to some degree at least the distress among the northwestern farmers; and second, to impress the farmers that there is hope for their fortunes in the ordinary evolution of natural conditions without resort to the artificial sort of devices proposed by radical politicians.

Both considerations must weigh strongly against La Follette's hopes. Indeed one might fairly guess that if these rises in the prices of corn and wheat had taken place three months ago, La Follette and his backers would probably not have entertained their plans for a third ticket.

There must be conceded, of course, as respects corn, though not as respects wheat, the possibility that a relatively poor crop of corn, even though the price retain its present very satisfactory height, might have the same effect of causing pessimism in corn communities, as existed in wheat communities last spring. Partial crop failure in the future might help La Follette. But future crop failure was not what La Follette relied on when he started his movement. The primary basis of his reliance was low prices, and these are largely past.

CRACKERS

Carter Leads Fast Field in Western Golf Tourney

Chicago, July 21.—Cracking par by three strokes, Captain E. J. Carter, of the Flossmoor Country Club, Chicago, formerly Irish champion, today led a fast field of 151 golfers in the first 18 holes of the qualifying round of the western amateur golf championship by shooting the 6,207-yard links of the Hinsdale Golf club, in 34-35—69. Four players were tied for second place at 70 and there were three 72's and two scores of 73.

Sixty-two players scored under 80 and 30 had 76 or better, indicating that a score of 153 likely would be the highest a stroke behind after tomorrow's 18-hole medal round to enter match play on Wednesday. Only 11 players will survive to play off the medal round along with Chick Evans, now holder of the title for the eighth time, who is qualified by virtue of his championship.

Captain Carter has not hit such a good stroke since he came to the United States to live, and for an unfortunate kick from the edge of a trap on the 10th hole, where he went one over par, for the only time he might have broken the course record of 67. He had four birdies.

Only a stroke behind were R. E. Knepper, of Chicago, formerly Iowa champion, and Princeton star, George Hackl, of Chicago, a Princeton golfer who made low score of 33 for the first nine today.

Frank Dyer, of Memphis, formerly Metropolitan champion, led the line of golfers from the clubhouse by scoring par 72 and thereby shared third scoring honors with John Dwyer and Art Sweet, of Chicago. Sweet was formerly a golfer at Northwestern university, as was Howard Schenck, who shared a 73 with Harrison R. Johnston, of St. Paul, who recently won the Minnesota title for the third time. Johnston's long drive gave him a chance to break 70 but his putter failed him in several pinches.

The southwest shone in the 74 scores, Ed Corbett, of St. Louis, runner-up to Manion in the trans-Mississippi championship, July 21.—Luis Angel Firpo, the wild, Wild Bull of the Pampas, had his head in again. It did seem that the big Argentine heavyweights had gotten himself into many more varieties of jams than ever came into the life of any other international personage except Batling Siki, but no sooner had Luis landed within shooting distance of the Statue of Liberty on his latest fight-purse raid than he was once more in trouble.

It was a new kind of difficulty for big-hearted Luis. A woman got him into it, though he is a man of consequence. Only the most vicious of accidents led up to it, according to the emphatic assertions of both Luis and Senorita Blanca Lourdes, the beautiful blond 180-pound young woman who occupied the stateroom adjoining Firpo's on the liner, American Legion, during the trip from Buenos Aires, and who was frequently seen with Firpo when he was here last year.

Spent Anxious Hours. However, innocent as was the whole affair, Luis and Blanca, to say nothing of a couple of Firpo's attendants, spent several anxious and indignant hours at Ellis island under the impression that they would at least have to stay there overnight and perhaps not be able to get into the country at all. Firpo is now in New York, however, closely guarded by some of the henchmen of Tex Rickard, lest he leap at some such bargain as the Grand Central terminal for $2,000. He was admitted, after a heavy barrage of questions from immigration officials, "as a visitor," which means he may stay here at least six months, long enough to skid across somebody's ring canvas.

Meanwhile, Blanca, the plump senorita, remains at the island, along with Eduardo Carbone and Miguel Serrano, the Firpo manager and sparring partner, respectively.

Delinquency Waived. Firpo and Senorita Lourdes, upon their arrival Monday, were detained by the immigration authorities on the technical grounds that their passports were not properly vided. The immigration commissioner may waive these delinquencies at his own discretion. This was done in Firpo's case.

It now appears that Senorita Lourdes never intended to land in New York. Her passport was made out for Cuba, but inasmuch as the American Legion does not touch at Cuba, it would appear that Senorita Lourdes was merely protracting her trip to the pleasure of the sail. So it is now planned for Firpo's girl friend to take the next boat for Cuba, which leaves Wednesday. Until then she will remain at the island, minus the gentle companionship of Luis Angel.

American Net Stars Make Clean Sweep in Olympics

BY JOHN O'BRIEN.

Paris, July 21.—A triumphant American flit over the Olympic tennis courts signifying that the United States stars have blazed their way through to a clean sweep of the international matches.

The complete record for the American team was recorded when Vincent Richards and Francis T. Hunter captured the men's doubles, and Mrs. George W. F. Hunter and Mrs. Norris Williams took the mixed doubles championship.

Richards and Hunter defeated Jacques Brugnon and Henri Cochet, the French pair, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3.

Mrs. Wightman and Williams won from two of their countrymen, Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup and Vincent Richards, 6-2, 6-3.

Team Total Is 35. These two victories coupled with the previous triumphs of men's and women's singles and women's doubles have won the United States team a total of 55 points, or 27 points better than the runner-up, France, which has 28 points. A blazing sun flashed down on the court as Richards and Hunter took up the task before them. They seemed to be in the best of form and apparently somewhat staid. There was a lack of team work.

Edman Horse Wins $2,000 Event. Kalamazoo, Mich., July 21.—(By the Associated Press).—Fred Edman won the $2,000 horse event, a feature of the Kalamazoo annual grand circuit renewal, driving Faravon to victory over Car Worthy. The latter horse, driven by Tommy Murphy, won the first heat, but in the next two heats the Edman horse handily out-trotted his opponent.

Edman's second victory came in the 2-30 trot, when with Harvest Day, a rank outsider, he finished three heats on an even basis with Mr. McElwain, who was in the fourth and decided heat, won, owing to Mr. McElwain breaking in the stretch.

Irene Scott, driven by Fleming, won the first heat, but in the 2-30 trot, then lost the third heat to Iskander. The finishes were all close. Edman's horse had little trouble capturing the 2-30 trot, and then offering practically no opposition.

There are indications of a great crowd being present on Tuesday to witness the $25,000 race, which will be for 2-30 class pacers. Fourteen entries will start. The Murphy entry, Baron Worthy, is favorite.

A Mountain Adventure.

By Dr. Walter E. Traprock.
Many years ago, when the little Swiss republic was fighting for her existence, it was my good fortune to hold the commission of lieutenant in the Alpine chassiers. With 10 men I was delegated to hold a pass between Riffelalp and Schnalzhorn, which is the back or family entrance to the Engadine, the richest chamois in Switzerland.

Italy had sent 20 picked mountaineers to oust us. We were thus outnumbered two to one. I saw that it was only a matter of time when they would be in a position to rush us. An idea occurred to me.
We had ample stores of spaghetti. Picking numerous lengths together, I lowered the ropes thus formed over the cliff edge. The ends came directly in front of the climbing Italians. Of course, they could not resist it. When an Italian sees spaghetti he asks no questions. When, by a gentle tugging on the spaghetti ropes, I knew that most of the enemy were eating, I began feeding, drop by drop, through the tubes a heavy cord made by the men of St. Beatz.

The result was inevitable. A few moments after I had begun the cordial treatment, I heard, at intervals, the crash of our adversaries as they loosened their hold and fell into the valley below. At that altitude they could not stand more than a few drops of the liquor of St. Beatz. So related was I that I drank a large bottle of it myself, and when I came to, the war was over and Switzerland was free.

The Higher Education.
The story comes to S. G. Scigley by word of mouth that a certain professor, a stickler for punctuality, insisted that everyone in his class be present when the "attention" bell rang. He would always be ready to begin on the stroke of the hour, or they might conclude he said that he was dead and put someone in his place.

The class arranged with a member of an upper class to detain the professor in the corridor.
Accordingly, one day, when the professor came to class forty-five seconds late, he found a large black cello with white collar occupying the professorial seat. The "prof" took one sharp look at the solemn class, snapped his fingers to the dog that immediately came to him, and said: "Nice doggie, nice doggie," patting him out through the doorway. "Now run upstairs to your own class. We teach only puppies down here."

White Fang

BY JACK LONDON

Once, the cub sprang in and sank his teeth into the hind leg of the lynx. He clung on, growling savagely. Though he did not know it, by the weight of his body he clogged the action of the leg and thereby saved his mother much damage. A change in the battle crushed him under both their bodies and wrenched loose his hold. The next moment the two mothers separated, and, before they rushed together again, the lynx lashed out at the cub with a huge fore-paw that rained his shoulder open to the bone and sent him hurtling sideways against the wall. Then was added to the uproar the cub's shrill yelp of pain and fright. But the fight lasted so long that he had time to cry himself out and to experience a second burst of courage; and the end of the battle found him again clinging to a hind leg and furiously growling between his teeth.

The lynx was dead. But the she-wolf was very weak and sick. At first she caressed the cub and licked his wounded shoulder; but the blood she had lost had taken it with her strength, and for all of a day and a night she lay by her dead foe's side, without movement, scarcely breathing. For a week she never left the cave, except for water, and then her movements were slow and painful. At the end of that time the lynx was devoured, while the she-wolf's wounds had healed sufficiently to permit her to take the meat-trail again.

The cub's shoulder was stiff and sore, and for some time he limped from the terrible slash he had received. But the world now seemed changed. He went about in it with greater confidence, with a feeling of prowess that had not been his in the days before the battle with the lynx. He had looked upon life in a more ferocious aspect; he had fought; he had buried his teeth in the flesh of a foe; and he had survived. And because of all this, he carried himself more boldly, with a touch of defiance that was new in him. He was no longer afraid of minor things, and much of his timidity had vanished, though the unknown never ceased to press upon him with its mysteries and terrors, intangible and ever-menacing.

He began to accompany his mother on the meat-trail, and he saw much of the killing of meat and began to play his part in it. And in his own mind he learned the law of meat. There were two kinds of life—his own kind and the other kind. His own kind included his mother and himself. The other kind included all things that moved. But the other kind was divided. One portion was what his own kind ate. This portion was composed of non-killers and the small killers. The other portion killed and ate his own kind, or was killed and ate his own kind. And out of this classification arose the law. The aim of life was meat. Life itself was meat. Life lived on life. There were the eaters and the eaten. The law was: eat or be eaten. He did not formulate the law in clear, set terms and moralize about it. He did not even think the law; he merely lived the law without thinking about it at all.

He saw the law operating around him on every side. He had eaten the ptarmigan chicks. The hawk had eaten the ptarmigan mother. The hawk would also have eaten him. Later, when he had grown more formidable, he wanted to eat the hawk. He had eaten the lynx kitten. The lynx mother would have eaten him had she not herself been killed and eaten. And so it went. The law was being lived about him by all live things, and he himself was part and parcel of the law. He was a killer. His only food was meat, live meat, that ran away swiftly before him, or flew into the air, or climbed trees, or hid in the ground, or faced him and fought with him, or turned the tables and ran after him.

Had the cub thought in man-fashion, he might have epitomized life as a voracious appetite, and the world as a place wherein ranged a multitude of appetites, pursuing and being pursued, hunting and being hunted, eating and being eaten, all in blindness and confusion, with violence and disorder, a chaos of gluttony and slaughter, ruled over by chance, merciless, planless, endless.

But the cub did not think in man-fashion. He did not look at things with wide vision. He was single-purposed, and entertained but one thought or desire at a time. Besides the law of meat, there was a myriad other and lesser laws for him to learn and obey. The world was filled with surprises. The air of life that was in him, the play of his muscles, was an unending happiness. To run down meat was to experience thrills and elations. His rages and battles were pleasures. Terror itself, and the mystery of the unknown, lent to his living.

And there were easements and satisfactions. To have a full stomach, to doze lazily in the sunshine—such things were remuneration in full for his arduous and toils, while his arduous and toils were in themselves self-remunerative. They were expressions of life, and life is always happy when expressing itself. So the cub had no quarrel with his hostile environment. He was very much alive, very happy, and very proud of himself.

PART THREE CHAPTER I.

The cub came upon it suddenly. It was his own fault. He had been careless. He had left the cave and run down to the stream to drink. It might have been that he took no notice because he was heavy with sleep. (He had been out all night on the meat-trail, and had but just then awakened.) And his carelessness might have been due to the familiarity of the trail to the pool. He had traveled it often, and nothing had ever happened on it.

He went down past the blasted pine, crossed the open space, and trotted in amongst the trees. Then, at the same instant, he saw and smelt. Before him, sitting silently on their haunches, were five live things, the like of which he had never seen before. It was his first glimpse of man-kind. But at the sight of him the five men did not spring to their feet, nor show their teeth, nor snarl. They did not move, but sat there, silent and ominous.

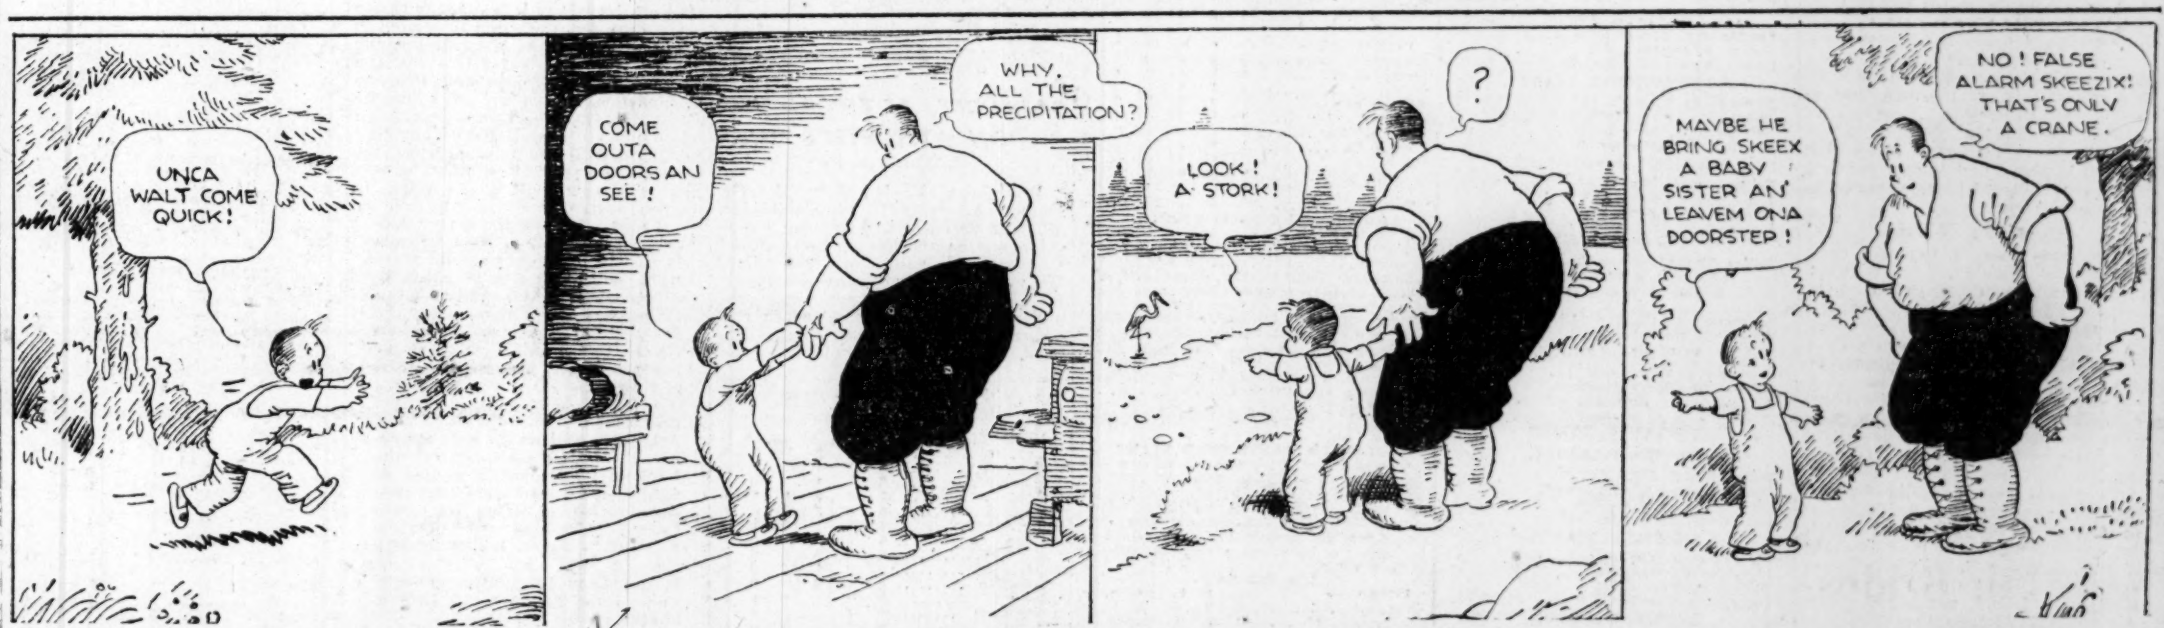

Nor did the cub move. Every instinct of his nature would have impelled him to dash wildly away, had there not suddenly and for the first time arisen in him another and counter instinct. A great awe descended upon him. He was beaten down to movelessness by an overwhelming sense of his own weakness and littleness. Here was mastery and power, something far and away beyond him.

GEORGIA EDITORS OPEN CONVENTION

Waycross, Ga., July 21.—(Special.) With about 400 members of the Georgia Press association present here tonight, the annual convention opened at the Central Baptist tabernacle. Addresses by Harry D. Reed and Miss Emily Woodward were features of welcome and response, while the address of Major Fonville McWhorter, vice president of the Citizens and Southern bank of Atlanta, was the first formal address.

Music was furnished by the Waycross Choral club. C. N. Rountree, editor of The Wrightsville Headlight, president of the association, presided. About a hundred delegates arrived in Douglas, Coffee county capital, early this morning and spent the day in Coffee and Bacon counties. They visited Ambrose, Broxton, Nicholls and Alma before they reached Waycross this evening.

Douglas citizens were lavish in their hospitality, serving breakfast at the hotel and luncheon at the Cracker Country club, with Kiwanis as special hosts.

Black to Speak.
Judge Bingham, of The Louisville Courier-Journal, in Europe and will not be on the program. Eugene R. Black, of Atlanta, speaks in place of the Kentucky editor. The association sent a telegram of sympathy this afternoon to E. A. Caldwell, of Monroe, when news of the death of his son, Hoke Caldwell, was received. Mr. Caldwell has been a regular attendant of the conventions and was to speak on the program this week.

Features of the sessions, which will continue through Wednesday and will then adjourn to other sections of south Georgia for the remainder of the week, will be the election of officials in the heart of the Okefenokee swamp Wednesday afternoon.

Many entertainment features are planned for the editors, including receptions at Jessup, Brunswick, St. Simon's island, Frederica and Fernandina.

McWhorter's Address.
Denouncing "yellow journalism" and organizations designed to interfere with the orderly functions of the constituted government as outstanding menaces to state development and predicting that better times for the state of Georgia are just around the bend, Major Fonville McWhorter, of Atlanta, vice president of the Citizens and Southern bank, delivered the opening address at the annual meeting tonight on "The Human Element in Georgia's Tomorrow."

"The spirit of a people that can bring a country, devastated by war, from poverty and ruin to be the garden spot of the universe within a half century will not be licked in five years by the boll weevil," the major observed in pleading that the development of Georgia be left to Georgians with Georgia money.

Trying Period.
"We must admit that our state has gone through a most trying period for several years, during which time we have become alarmed at the loss of labor, of capital and the general unrest of our people. In our hurry to correct this evil we are now starting a move to bring in new blood, new money and new ideas. That is good, but let us pause in our enthusiasm for a survey and be sure we are wisely handling a delicate situation.

"Our first duty is to keep our boys and girls at home. To do this we must develop our resources, our industry, our commerce and interest, our manhood and womanhood in building for our state. We become alarmed at labor leaving farms, but this is no problem as labor will always migrate to where capital is sufficient to employ. But to lose the intellect is criminal and we are losing it because we have been satisfied to put our entire surplus in cotton and pleasures.

Need Diversification.
"Our greatest need is diversified industries and these brought about by developing our many resources and turning them into use for our people. Every village and town in Georgia should have a factory of some kind. There is room for them and capital to build.

"We are to be a sad day for us when people from other sections exploit our minerals, our clays, our granite, our forest and our people, for commercial purposes alone. The industry to be discouraged is the one that would sap our resources and leave behind but a barren waste and then spend the money in other sections, and even while here carry no share in the moral life of our social system.

"A menace to business that will reflect in tomorrow is the unwholesome publicity going out from our state. I have seen glowing reports of a Georgia product, made in Georgia by Georgia labor and financed by Georgia capital competing for eye and attention on the first page in the news columns with magnified reports of Georgia murders, Georgia crimes and other scandals.

"Necessary facts in a news story rather than playing to the sordid interest of curious mobs is the style of journalism most constructive and most appreciated in this section," the major explained.

Over Organized.
"Another menace to our political and business structure today is the ever-increasing number of organizations in number and in power. We might grant that these organizations are founded for good purposes, but in their effort to combat the evils they claim to combat they forget other duties and trample other rights under foot.

"Every judgment points to a comeback year for our people; the Federal Reserve Bank Review predicts for Georgia and the southeast a splendid fall. Let us look our problems straight in the face and lick them before they get here, then material prosperity will care for itself and our state will continue the Empire State of the South, and a blessing to our people."

EVANS IS WINNER IN SCHOOL FIGHT

Lawton B. Evans, for 42 years superintendent of the Richmond schools and spokesman for the 51 members of the Richmond county board of education, Monday night emerged victor over the Richmond county legislative delegation when the house educational committee, after a bitter battle, unanimously recommended for passage an amendment to a pending measure which would limit the tax rate for school purposes in Richmond county to 10 mills.

The amendment provides that the measure will not become effective until January 1, 1926, and Mr. Evans states that pledges have been obtained from the six candidates for legislative post in the coming primaries that whoever is elected will promptly introduce and support a measure which will repeal the object of the proposed bill. Joe Cumming, Rowe and Revell, present Richmond county representatives, are not candidates for re-election.

Leveled School Tax.
Richmond is one of the four Georgia counties specifically exempted from the present 10-mill tax limit by constitutional provision. When the legislators refused to indorse a bond issue to obtain funds for construction of four new school buildings in Richmond county, the board of education, composed of three members from each school district, levied a school tax assessment of 14 mills, an amount sufficient to provide funds for the new buildings regardless of the bonds.

Ex-congressman Fleming, supporting Mr. Evans, in his argument before the committee on education, pointed out that the Richmond County Board of Education was organized in 1872 and that in the 52 years it had built up a school system that was widely acclaimed as a national model. He explained that if the 10-mill restriction should prevail that the board of education, elected by the people, would be $165,000 short in meeting 1924-25 obligations which have already been contracted.

Mr. Evans, who is superintendent of the Richmond schools, and Mr. Fleming, who is a member of the board of education, withdrew objections to the amendment and the bill will be reported to the house this morning for favorable action.

Action is Postponed.
A measure introduced by Chairman Elders, of Tattall county, providing for a state equalization school fund toward the end that the poorer school districts in the state may be assisted from a special fund, also aroused heated discussion and action was deferred until the next meeting of the committee.

E. F. Hartfelder, of Savannah, appeared before the committee urging favorable action on a proposed resolution advocating approval of a bill pending in the national congress to create a department of education of which a cabinet member would be the head. This also went over until a later session.

YOUNG SURRENDERS HIMSELF TO POLICE

George O. Young, resident of a fashionable Peachtree apartment, who is alleged to have struck Councilman Wiley L. Moore, of the seventh ward, in a downtown hotel a week ago, surrendered himself to police Monday and was placed under a $500 bond.

The fight, according to the councilman, grew out of a financial matter in which the two had been involved. Young is said to have owed him $2,000. Young complained that Moore had appealed to his wife about the money, police were told.

Zermatt, Switzerland, July 21.—The Swiss Alps have claimed two more victims. Dr. Braun, of Vienna, and his young wife, lost their lives yesterday in a fall while attempting to climb the Matterhorn without the aid of a guide. They fell 400 feet to the bottom of a precipice.

ACTION IS POSTPONED UPON TWO BIG BILLS

Although two of the most important bills before the house of representatives were discussed before the committee on education at a meeting Monday night, action on both was postponed until the next meeting.

The measure introduced by Representative Elders, of Tattall county, providing that half the appropriation for the common schools of the state shall be set aside as an equalization fund to be used to aid the schools in the poorer counties was vigorously attacked by various members of the committee. A motion to report adversely, however, was defeated 9 to 8 and a motion to postpone final action until the next meeting was then carried.

E. F. Hartfelder, of Macon, representing the supreme council of the Scottish Rite Masons, southern jurisdiction, then spoke to the committee on behalf of the bill now pending in the federal congress to create a national department of education. This proposal also drew strong opposition, members contending that the national bill was an invasion of states' rights and would result in a Washington despotism, supported by hundreds of millions of taxpayers' money, dictating to the people of Georgia what textbooks their children should study in the public schools. It was also declared that the bill made it possible for the national department of education to withhold funds from the state because white children and negroes are segregated in the schools of Georgia.

Representative Sapp, of Whitfield, interrupted the debate on this matter at a late hour and decision on it was postponed. The actual question before the committee was a house resolution, introduced by Representative Camp, of Campbell, indorsing the bill in congress.

The following committees have been named: Arrangements, W. L. Elliott, W. R. Green, H. C. Elliott, J. H. Elliott, J. W. Crumley, D. P. Cook, W. G. Copeland, W. L. Glass and C. W. Coan.

YOUNG SURRENDERS HIMSELF TO POLICE

George O. Young, resident of a fashionable Peachtree apartment, who is alleged to have struck Councilman Wiley L. Moore, of the seventh ward, in a downtown hotel a week ago, surrendered himself to police Monday and was placed under a $500 bond.

The fight, according to the councilman, grew out of a financial matter in which the two had been involved. Young is said to have owed him $2,000. Young complained that Moore had appealed to his wife about the money, police were told.

Savannah Ready For Big Carnival And Water Show

Savannah, Ga., July 21.—(Special.) Program plans, involving some changes have been completed for the first annual three-day Savannah Water carnival and show, to be held at Savannah and on suburban waters July 24-26.

Interstate speed boat contests between St. Petersburg and Savannah will feature the racing program to take place on the afternoon of Friday and Saturday on the Wilmington river, at Thunderbolt, a Savannah inland salt water resort.

The St. Petersburg Power Boat association is sending three of their speediest craft "T11" which is a 405 inch displacement boat, and "Miss Pasadena," and "The Bluey," two hydroplanes. These boats are to be matched against some of the fastest Savannah boats in the free-for-all race to be staged on Saturday afternoon. More thrills than Savannah waters have seen in many years are expected.

Canoe Races.
The Seminoles Canoe club, of Jacksonville, an organization known throughout Florida, is sending a crack team for the canoe race and tilting contests. These teams will also put on some stunts. It is expected that canoe teams from several cities will take part in the two main canoe races.

The water carnival committee has closed a contract with the organization of negro jazz artists, to furnish instrumental music for the races. The band will be located on a barge anchored in midstream at the starting point. This band will also play for the confetti and carnival ball to be staged in front of the De Soto hotel Friday night.

Pageant Opens Carnival.
The formal opening of the carnival will take place on Thursday night, at Duffin park, Savannah, with an elaborate water pageant staged by 300 hundred young men and women entitled "A Night in Venice" which will provide the main features of the program. Tub races, swimming races, fancy diving contests and an elaborate fireworks exhibition are also on the program for the opening night.

The third day's program originally planned to be held on Tybee island near Savannah has been changed by the committee to the Wilmington river at Thunderbolt.

Savannah has declared a half holiday Friday, and from 1 o'clock on the town will be closed in honor of the big aquatic celebration. The program closes at Thunderbolt Saturday evening.

Tri-State Meet.
Letters and telegrams from all parts of Georgia, South Carolina and Florida sent by the Carnival committee advise that delegations interested in aquatic sports are coming from all points and Savannahians are therefore looking forward to a record crowd of visitors for the event.

The Savannah Water carnival is being sponsored by the Savannah Motor Boat club. The board of trade, the city of Savannah, and all civic and social organizations of the city are planned to make the carnival an

THIS WOMAN'S MARVELOUS RECOVERY

All Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Truman, Minn.—"I was badly run-down and had pains in my side and back; sometimes I couldn't hardly move around in bed. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking it I was so much better I could do all my work again. I do my house-work, have a garden, raise chickens, and in harvest time I worked in the field and helped pick corn. Sometimes I do chores and milk. I took the Vegetable Compound before and after my four-month-old baby was born, and it has always helped me wonderfully. I believe there is no better medicine made for women, and I hope every woman will give it a fair trial."

—Mrs. AUGUST R. WIENERHOFF, R. No. 2, Box 84, Truman, Minnesota.

Women suffering from troubles so common to their sex should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

The Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has relieved women of such troubles for the past fifty years. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Young Writers Plan Ambitious Publications in Interests of Y. W.

Miss Leonora Anderson (on the left) and Miss Olive Hall (right), who are the editors of "The Highland Fling," the official organ of popular Camp Highland, the Y. W. C. A. camp for members, situated near Marietta, Ga.

"The Highland Fling," famed as a folk dance is likely to become a magazine, chronicling the affairs of the Y. W. C. A. camp, Highland.

Last year two girls, Miss Olive Hall and Miss Leonora Anderson, who were counselors at the camp, put out a little eight-page paper, full of interesting camp events, jokes and the like. This creditable little paper sold for ten cents and caused a great deal of comment, being not only interesting to the campers but to almost every girl or young woman who has the slightest interest in out-of-door life in general. This summer the girls are going at it on a larger scale, and the Highland Fling will be a magazine—or perhaps year-book is the better name. At any rate it will have the imposing appearance of a magazine and the heavy covers of an annual, and it will contain many pictures and stories and poems, plus the camp news and the camp affairs. And the editors feel that the Highland Fling has taken large, long, improving steps forward.

Miss Hall, who is a brilliant student at Agnes Scott college, is also one of the best known of the camp counselors, having been connected with Highland for six summers. She is a graduate of Girls' High school, where she was president of her class in her senior year, 1922. Miss Hall is gaining a reputation as a writer and is an excellent publicity woman among her associates.

Miss Anderson graduated from Girls' High school in the same class with Miss Hall. For over two years she has been connected with Atlanta papers, and has done publicity for the Atlanta Women's club, the Atlanta League of Women Voters, the Kiwanis club, and the Elks club during convention, advertisement writing, and is now doing publicity for the Girl Scouts and feature writing.

The two young authors of the Highland Fling believe that their combined efforts will produce a magazine which will be a credit to the camp and a joy to everybody who reads it. In addition to last summer's Highland Fling three plays have been put on at the Y. W. C. A. by them. "Mariana Moore" and "It's a Boy" are their two best works. These plays were written by the two girls this winter and the Y. W. girls enjoyed them at a big entertainment for the benefit of the Y.

The Highland Fling will be off the press in August and may be obtained then at the Y. W. C. A. headquarters for 50 cents a copy. Subscriptions may be turned in now at the Y. W. C. A., to Miss Hall.

Fair-Weather Wives

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

Marjorie Makes Her Choice.

Mrs. Boice-Nevis sat with compressed lips, her whole selfish cry-baby being revolting at such a necessity. She sat erect on the none-too-clean cushions, as though trying to keep the folds of her sumptuous wrap from contamination.

"Really Marjorie, I see no need for this ridiculous haste. Leaving the opera was proper under the circumstances, but we might at least have waited comfortably at the Ritz and got word to Horton to bring the car here after he called at the Metropolitan."

Marjorie made no reply. She sat staring into the darkness, her mind busily formulating plans. She knew the futility of announcing to her mother just yet that she was going to Hollister. Mrs. Boice-Nevis would think she had taken leave of her senses. Time enough to tell her at the moment of departure when there would be no opportunity for a scene.

She wondered a little at herself. What was it in her that had made her decide to go, as soon as she had heard of the accident? What strange human, even primitive, impulse had taken possession of her, to call her thus powerfully to the deathbed of a man she had always feared and hated? Except her father, no one of her family had ever been actuated by human impulses, and the man to whom she was going was a husband in name only. Yet she felt a call that was irresistible, a duty that was irrevocable.

In her memory, she was seeing the library at Soundview on a hot summer night, her father, grey, broken, ruined, her mother pretty, frivolous, but implacable, sending him away to South America alone, with the bitterness of defeat in his heart.

She was seeing, too, another night when Julie, in her brilliant gown, a bright unnatural light in her eyes, stood before the fire and lightly sentenced Norris Barclay to oblivion, taking the "other man" to fill the place in which she declared he had failed. And there was the night Leila had come home with Ivan, weak, sick, and broken—Leila, resentful, bitter, straggling in her fear of a future that might hurt her own selfish self.

Quitters, she had called them all, Marjorie remembered—her mother, her father, and Leila. She had scorned them for their fair-weather loves. She had been ashamed to come of such blood. It wasn't square, it wasn't sporting, it wasn't honorable.

How sweet, how pretty, how devoted they could all be, the women of her family, when they were being petted and jeweled and sumptuously groomed. In the benign atmosphere of prosperity, they spread their brilliant plumage like birds of paradise and cooed as sweetly as the doves in the garden at Soundview. But with the first chill breath of adversity, they were gone, indignant, to seek other garb—forgetful of obligation, even of the plant.

Well, Marjorie squared her shoulders unconsciously and her round young chin went up proudly, she had scorned them for it, she had vowed she would never be like them when her time came.

And now the time was at hand! Broken, helpless, dying, the man she had married lay in a sordid little roadside inn for untold nights. She had feared him, even hated him for the charity he had forced upon her, when he was well and strong and virile. But now that fear was gone. There was only sorrow and infinite pity in her heart. And a sense of obligation which she could never repay.

She remembered suddenly the letter she had written him that afternoon and left for Marjorie to post. She hoped now that Marjorie had not yet mailed it. Not that he would ever read it, for he was dying; but she felt a sense of broken dishonor. He had been lying, broken and unconscious, while she penned those words. She couldn't honorably take back what she had written; in fact, she would rather have liked him to know that she wasn't the low, cheap, creature that he must have thought her all these past two years, but the very thought of that letter making its way inexorably through the mails that night made her cry "Quitter," another rat deserting a sinking ship.

"I wonder if he leaves a will," Mrs. Boice-Nevis broke the silence with the remark she had made earlier in the ride, "or any provision for you. If he didn't, of course you are entitled to a third."

"Mother, please!" Marjorie broke in. "Don't be absurd, Marjorie!" shrugged her mother. "What harm is there in discussing these practical matters? It isn't as though you had ever loved the man, ever even lived with him. You ought to thank your lucky stars, just as my good judgment, that I didn't let you get free two years ago. Now, you'll probably be one of the richest young widows in the country."

Marjorie gave an exclamation of distress. "Mother, you can't be so heartless! Please, please, for my sake, don't talk about such things!"

Mrs. Boice-Nevis gave her a curious glance. "You're the strangest girl," she sighed. "I can't understand you. Not a bit like any of the family. If I didn't know different, I'd think you were a changeling."

Before the evening was over, she had reason to be even more justified. (Copyright, 1924, for The Constitution.)

Sweet Potato Plants Must Be Inspected Before 'Yams' Are Dug

Notice has been sent by the state board of entomology to all growers of sweet potato plants, calling their attention to the law which requires that the potatoes be inspected before the potatoes are dug, if they expect to sell sweet potato plants next year.

This inspection is done each year, before a license is granted for the sale of sweet potato plants, in order to prevent the spread of plant diseases from one section to another by means of the plant.

The department states that all inspections will be made free of charge if application is mailed to the office of the state board of entomology, state capitol, Atlanta, before inspection work is commenced.

BEAUTY CHATS

ANSWERED LETTERS.

Grey Eyes: If your skin is sallow it shows that your digestive system is not right and no amount of bleaching will give you a white skin under such circumstances. Drink a great deal of water between meals and simplify the diet, eating almost no meat and giving preference now to the fresh green vegetables and salads.

You can tint your hair with henna so that they will not be very noticeable. A henna formula will be mailed to you if you request it and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for forwarding.

Irene S.: The juice of half a lemon to a basin of water, used as the final rinse after a shampoo, will help to keep light hair from getting dark for a long time.

Mrs. Esther J.: When using the vibrator near the eyes, always place your fingers over the eyelids and then run the nozzle over the fingers. There will be enough vibration passing between and through the fingers to the eyes.

So often the screws in eye-glasses become loose and we have no screw-driver small enough to tighten them. A steel pen or the end of a cuticle knife will answer the purpose.

Keep the Door Closed. Persons who store rather large quantities of potatoes and apples in their cellars should keep the door of the cellar closed on warm days when the temperature outside is much higher than that where the vegetables are stored. Open doors will cause the potatoes and fruit to sweat, which means eventual decay and rot.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Non-Sliding Raisins. Before putting raisins in cakes or puddings, try rolling them in butter. This will prevent them from sinking to the bottom.

A Pleasant Method. One well-known authority on household lore claims a piece of candy when she is dead tired from housework perks her up to her usual speed.

Prevents Tarnishing. Put a piece of camphor away with that silver that is to be stored while you are away. Then it will be shiny and bright when you return home.

In Lieu of a Screw Driver. So often the screws in eye-glasses become loose and we have no screw-driver small enough to tighten them. A steel pen or the end of a cuticle knife will answer the purpose.

Wrigley Company Earnings
Establish New High Record

BY R. L. BARNUM.
New York, July 21.—While the music industry corporations show sharp drop in earnings for the first half of 1924, due to the general trade con-

deal directly with the public and other companies which furnish products bought by the population from day to day. A case in point is a report of William Wrigley, Jr., before noon and sent Steel, Calkins and other speculative issues up sharply. The opening was strong, following the constructive news developments from abroad, and the more favorable ings sought by the population from day to day. A use in point is a report of William Wrigley, Jr., company, issued today. This shows earnings of $4,251,226 for the first six months of 1924, a new high record of the equivalent of $2.36 a share earned on the 1,800,000 of capital stock outstanding.

The Maxwell Motors corporation is also issued their earnings statement. Maxwell reports net of $475,000 for the first half of 1924 against $75,532 for the same period last year.

Texas Gulf Sulphur reports $1.86 a share earned in the June quarter. Whether or not the business offered the railroads of the country will be great this autumn as was experienced in 1924 is difficult to forecast. Industry in general is decidedly better at the present time. Signs in the air, however, that there will be considerable improvement within the few months and that the movement will be of fair volume.

Further reductions in prices in crude and refined oils were again announced today, but the stock market was little affected. Such a move as these days. The oils, like the coppers, will be well liquidated, according to experts' opinions.

ing the constructive news developments from abroad, and the more favorable report of our own domestic news, especially in relation to conditions in the agricultural belt. But before the close of the first hour stocks reacted on price and there was some accumulation of orders to sell at the opening. This reaction was short-lived and the market soon resumed its upward course.

Grains, like the stock market, reacted early on profit taking, but soon recovered lost ground. The sensational development in the agricultural section was the violent rise in cotton following publication of the favorable crop report which was less favorable than expected. A condition of 68.5 was announced as of July 16, for the growing cotton crop and the indicated yield 11,038,000 bales. On this news October cotton jumped the trading limit of $10 a bale in about four minutes and other contracts moved up sharply as shorts scrambled to cover commitments made for the decline.

This change in condition in not only cotton, but also grains, and the accompanying high prices for these products is expected, according to best opinion, to bring about a decided change in business conditions in the autumn.

W. C. Curran, president of the new firm, is not a newcomer to Atlanta's financial and cotton circles, but for a number of years has been identified with the stock and cotton business of Atlanta and its immediate territory. The firm now holds a membership in the New Orleans cotton exchange, and besides acts as an information source for H. & B. Beer on nationally-known stock and cotton markets, who are members of all the principal exchanges of the United States.

The new office of the firm of A. H. Curran and company, is in the same location as that formerly occupied by the Atlanta Commercial and Finance company.

Large quotation boards have been erected and were in operation Monday with quotations on stocks, cotton, grain and provisions and other commodities. Private direct wires to H. & B. Beer come in to the new office, giving the latest quotations on the market.
